For the last few decades, developed and developing countries have engaged in heated debates and discussions regarding two core issue areas in international climate change meeting: climate financing and technology transfer. Although progress was made in discussions regarding climate financing such as those about the Green Climate Fund(GCF), financing for climate change adaptation (CCA) still remains a priority issue for developing countries that needs to be addressed in more depth. In the 11th CSDLAP Saturday Seminar, the speaker will talk about the overall prospects for CCA financing in the short to medium term. He will also discuss ways to identify, access and efficiently use CCA finance.

Tae Yong Jung is a professor at the KDI School of Public Policy & Management. His research areas are energy, environment, climate change related issues and economic development.

This seminar is open to the public and will be held in KOREAN.
